Judelande counsels municipalities in general government matters involving land use and planning, short-term rentals, transportation, and affordable housing issues.

Prior to joining the firm, Judelande served as a law clerk at the Florida League of Cities where she drafted case summaries for the Florida Municipal Law Reporter and legal memos pertaining to amicus briefs to the Florida Supreme Court. She also tracked legislative bills and conducted research for legislative committee appearances.

She graduated from the University of South Florida with a major in political science and earned her Juris Doctor degree from Florida State University College of Law where she served as the teaching assistant to one of her professors.

Judelande is fluent in Creole and French.
